“ Debbie had a heart for people. She was very proud of Catie, always talking so highly of you, Catie. Debbie had forgiven everyone in life, and, like most of us, still had a few emotional scars. Around Debbie, I refused to eat with her when she drank, according to scripture (I Cor.5:11), and that may have been her saving grace to show some restraint (Luke 21:34), because she was coherent, and not "strung out" on alcohol, or addicted, when she died. For Debbie and I both knew that self control was a goal that she was getting well in hand at the time of her death, praise God. And many times you, Catie, were a wonderful motivation for her, and she spoke of you as a motivation to keep improving....

For too many albuterol sulfate treatments for COPD caused rapid heart rate and her demise, instead of mere debauchery, as I had feared. Debbie was doing SO much better, and knew Jesus as her savior, for those who might question it! She's in a better place, by far.
