“ I had the distinct pleasure and honor of knowing Jack during the last year or so before I retired from Sears. During slack times he would expound on his many and varied experience, especially during the war. He was very proud of his family, particularly his grandkids, and spoke lovingly of his wife, Mary. He lent me Doris Kerns Goodman's book on Lincoln and I would have loved to have been able to discuss the movie with him. Truly the greatest Generation! Rest easy, Jack.
