Furyk was raised in California and attended the Midland Boarding School in Los Olivos, California, while there, he developed a dynamic, inclusive leadership style, as well as earned the nickname “Zeus” Champion, Leader, Visionary! A remarkably intelligent and worldly fellow with an extremely impressive and passionate artistic talent which included photography, painting, sculpting, stenciling, and found its way into how he loved, communicated, forged new friendships, and lived. The vast circle he drew around his life was captivating and full of admiring people from all over the world. He attended Cornell College in Mt. After graduation, Furyk moved to the Hamptons on Long Island, NY, working in restaurants and spending his free time lounging at the beach, riding his motorcycle and rubbing elbows with millionaire vacationers. Furyk spent two years in Nairobi, Kenya and established a design firm and industrial art company specializing in large scale corporate art. He had gallery openings and was among the burgeoning art scene in Nairobi. Upon his return, Furyk fell in love with New York City and embraced the many challenges and joys of the vibrant city lifestyle as he made new friends and started a family with the birth of his son, Truman. His final years were spent in Albuquerque among college friends, family, and the New Mexico Brujos Rugby Club, who valued his athletic spirit, fierce competitiveness and his robust advocacy of good times and brotherly camaraderie. “ Jeremiah and I immediately bonded while we were neighbors in Paragonah, Utah. We sure were misfits in that little town which is probably why we became so close.

I have always loved and treasured our memories together! Once, while waiting at the bus stop, he threw an apple at a stop sign with the intention of breaking the apple. He missed the sign and hit me. It hurt a bit but we laughed and laughed. I also remember our time hanging out at the park just talking and relating. My last memory is when we rode the ferris wheel together at the Parowan Utah Fair.
Rest in peace, my friend.

Was a great guy a world traveler with great stories and adventures. We did the ballon fest and invited him to se us on our trip to South America. We were on the Panama Canal when we got the news. The only consolation is he lived life to the fullest and in a way larger then life. May you rest in God's arms.
