“ The characteristic I most admired about my friend Helen was her strength. Though she was short in stature, she was enormous in personality, opinion, and voice. If you were fortunate, you were loved by Helen. If you were very fortunate, Helen believed in you. When Helen believed in you, even if she disagreed with you, she supported you. She might later tell you, "I told you so", but that was fine because more often than not, she was right. I was always in good company with Helen. I would say "rest in peace, Helen", but I'm pretty certain that she is already quite busy setting things straight in her new neighborhood.

“ It is time to rest, Helen, after your long illness. Thank you for your many years of friendship to me and my Mom. I'll miss the many years of Political discussions we had, but I know we will meet again. Give a kiss to Paula, and a big hug to my Mom when you get there. They have been waiting to greet you for along time. I'll miss you, old friend.Love, Annelle and Gary
